Using any other mode, such as Tv or Av, would mean that you just have to worry about one of these changes, but Manual mode means you have to do it all yourself. This can be a little challenging at first, but after a while you will have a complete understanding of how each change affects your exposure, which will, in turn, improve the way that you use the other modes.

I've been using my 5D Mark II for several years in "Program", "AV", and "TV" modes, but just started trying out manual "M" mode and am confused. With the camera in manual mode, I can adjust the shutter speed using the main dial (above the shutter button) with no problem, but when I turn the Quick Control Dial, which is supposed to adjust the aperture, nothing happens.
